

Christine Lang, MBA
Director of Data Consulting

Christy joined the Simione team in 2020 as Director of Data Consulting to lead the development of solutions for data strategy, analysis and management. She has a long track record of leadership to help home health and hospice clients improve performance, drawing on her 20+ years in post-acute care to facilitate Simione's technical, operational and sales efforts to advance data capabilities across consulting teams.

An experienced business leader and frequent national speaker in our industry, Christy previously served in senior director roles with ABILITY Network for sales strategy, market development and product management (2015-2019). She also led product strategy and client services at National Research Corporation (2010-2015), and grew in progressive roles spanning client relations, product management, data strategy, and leadership of the home health and hospice business lines at Outcome Concept Systems, Inc. (1999-2010). Christy is a highly active member of the post-acute professional community as a presenter and author on topics that include business intelligence, benchmarking, quality measurement, customer satisfaction and value-based purchasing.

Christy earned a Master of Business Administration and a B.A. in political science and mathematics from the University of Washington.
